That waved in the mornings beams. Soft eyes of agure and eyes of crown And snow-white forehead are there; A glimmering cross and a glittering crown, A thorny bed and a couch of down,

Lost hopes and leaflets of prayer. A breath of spring in the breezy woods, Sweet wafts from the quivering pines-Blue violet eyes beneath green hoods, A bubble of brooklets, a scent of buds, Bird-warbles and clambering vines.

A rosy wreath in dimpled hand, . A ring and a slighted vow; Three golden links of a broken band, A tiny track on the snow-white sand, A tear and a sinless brow.

There's a tineture of grist in the beatiful That sobs on the slombrous air, And loneliness felt in the festive brong. Sinks down the soul as it trembles along From the clime where the roses were.

We heard it first at the dawn of day, And it mingled with me in chimes, But years have distanced the beautiful lay, And its melody floweth from far away, And we call it, now, Old Times.
